hatching an idea

One of the best parts of my job at Interior Design—and one of the reasons I do what I do—is that I get to see my ideas take form in every issue and Market Table. This time, to pay homage to spring, we took a photographic flight of fancy in "No Empty Nest." Besides exploring bird-dom in all its feathery, fluttery, eggy glory, we even included one fabric reminiscent of droppings, Camilla Diedrich's True Blue Linen.

If you're one of those people still haunted by Alfred Hitchcock's The Birds, perhaps you'll skip this one—and flock to the almost 700 other products devoid of avian reference.

Wishing you many sunny, springy days.

Karen D. Singh

Nigel the friendly crow perches on the arm of editor in chief, Cindy Allen. Behind them are Patricia Urquiola's wenge-and-lacquer Damasco table for Artelano and Lill Moritz's Carisma fabric for Sahco-Hesselein, through Bergamo.

Galbraith & Paul

Step into Spring Garden. This playful geometric floral is unique because each time artisans hand block the paint onto the cloth, the colors turn out differently.
